Fire Consumes Car.

Shrill blasts from the siren whistle at the Southern Railway shops brought Southsiders out early last night to fight fire at the big industry. Fortunately the flames were confined to a box car in the yards, and no damage resulted to the plant, upon which hundreds of men depend for a living. The fire consumed the car, it being impossible to bring water to play on it. It is supposed to have been ignited by negro workmen employed on construction work. Fire Consumes Car.
